Era of “MADE IN USA” is coming back

Dear Members,

It was really fun to write the 2013 Financial Prediction book, because we always like to present what we see in the future coming time. Before we used to try hard to predict the markets trend, but now we simple try to see the trends direction because that can make investors and traders life easy. In 2013 we are not very optimistic about metals trend and once investors read this headline it will become really easy for them to plan. Like right now our most important personal clients are not holding any positions in metals because we see a negative trend and they don't want to put money and wait for positive directions. In our book we overall guided positive and negative cycles for all most all major markets and we are sure that will help them to make decisions in the overall investment strategy.

We humbly request that you remain humble and calm if you are making money in the North-node + Saturn combination cycles because the nature of both these planets is almost the same and they take away everything if they see ego in anyone. We are basically representing and advising our members how to flow with all the different nature's cycles because it is very difficult to hold success. I have gone through many ups and down during my negative Saturn cycle and each day I learn so much in daily routine life as well as people's behavior. Before I used to react sharply but after I started meditating I feel clam and even started respecting any negativity because it will also teach me something. Any way's you know better how to lead your life, but once again I would like to say that life is short, every day we are walking towards the final destinations so do something which can make you depart happily from this planet. Yes, money is the centre gravity point, so we have to make money to survive and do other good deeds so let's make money and share with the neediest around you.

You won't find a better place than the financial market to make money, so let's see what this week indicates for all major markets. We highly recommend reading the currencies sections very carefully because the golden era of dollar can come back, made in USA can retake an important place in the hearts of consumer, we are really excited about US Dollar and the US equity market.

Our astro indicators giving single of unemployment rate dropping toward 6.5 and interest rate rising by end of 2013; both these predictions are well before Fed anticipated.

Tuesday and Wednesday is Scorpio Moon, so trade with low leverage position because there will be volatility in all major markets.

GOLD/SILVER

Last week gold and silver fell sharply on Thursday and Friday as predicted. Many of our personal clients who have been trading gold for many decades are concerned as well. None of our clients are holding positions in metals at this stage due to our negative indications. For the first time in the last twelve years our astro indicators are not showing any positive signs and that is a concerning sign so those who trade in and out should be very careful in buying on any sharp fall because prices can fall further and they can get trap.

Last week gold went below $1639, the most important level but bounced back and closed around $1655. If it starts trading below $1639 and if it closes below $1639 then I may warn the metal community as weakness can remain for a longer period, (gold investors are safe if gold remains above $1639, like last year we mentioned gold is safe in its remains above $1530). No accumulations, no calls and physical buying because metals can keep falling for the medium and longer term. At this stage we are very concerned because gold trading below $1639 can open the door for $1555 and $1410.

Silver can also follow gold, but it can still hold last year's low of $26.10 even if gold falls to $1410. You shouldn't be trading metals with love, attachment or emotions because you are putting or investing money to buy gold hoping that prices may go up but if prices fall then it can give you huge loses, so trade/invest smartly.

This week it looks like gold may struggle to cross $1668, and silver $30.65 during this week, any sharp rise should be taken as a selling opportunity in gold and if you like to hedge trades then buying silver against it will be a good hedging trade. We still recommend avoiding trading in metals, or trades with low leverage and stop-loss. If you ask us how much money we will put in metals at this stage? Our answer will be zero dollars because we have other great trades available. Like previously when other financial instrument were not performing, gold and silver kept providing returns to investors, in fact in the last eleven year metals keep making investors richer every year but now the cycle have changed.

Most of you are aware that we are very bullish on stocks, and will remain bullish on the markets for the next two years. Yes in every bull trend there is a short term down wards corrections and in every bear market there is always a small upwards trend so there will be patches in which metals may move up and we will try our best to guide on those rising patches.

This week once again the Moon will be transiting from house of Scorpio, so we may see huge volatility coming back in the market. Moon will be trading in Scorpio from Late Monday, to late Wednesday, so from late Monday or from Tuesday and Wednesday we will see both sides' sharp moves in metals. Avoid trading with high leverage positions. Any fall will be sharp and sudden, also after sharp falls prices will recover falsely.

On Thursday and Friday precious metals may stabilize and traders can buy only for the short period trading only, we are not recommending any longer term investments.

Today we received a few emails asking that they believe some problem erupting in the middle-east can push gold back to high, our answer is gold doesn't need any war to go up and that is the wrong thinking. Why should metals investors want war and bloodshed for gold to go higher so that they can make money, this is the same like saying a farmer expecting a drought so that grain prices go higher, we don't understand how people think. Gold is still in its rising era for the next 40 years, but 2013/14 will remain weaker or directionless.

Here is Monday's range: (March/April 2013 contract):

GOLD: $1665.30 to $1641.50

SILVER: $30.37 TO $29.50

BASE METALS

The positive trend of the global stock markets are helping base metals and oil because investors feel that the positive outlook of the global economy will support copper and oils trend. We still believe that Gold is the engine for commodities, and all major commodities will move in the direction in which gold is going. Gold played a key role in the last decade to bring a life in commodity markets; in fact the commodity market got revived only because of gold.

Copper won't be able to walk on its own path, but surely in some patches of 2013, copper and palladium will perform extremely well compared to platinum and other metals.

This week there will be volatility in base metals, prices will start falling down from late Monday, buy copper and platinum puts at this stage. We won't be surprised if copper moves down to $327 and platinum $1373 in a few weeks' time. Palladium prices will also remain weaker so avoid any investments in palladium as well.

Some positive movement will come in base metals on late Thursday, but positivity will remain for a short period of time. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday we see base metals remaining weaker. Sell ETF's of base metals.

Here is Monday's range: (March/April 2013 contract):

COPPER: $372.75 TO $367.10

PALLADIUM: $696.50 TO $679.20

PLATINUM: $1577 TO $1557.90

INDEXES

Last week has proven to be one of the best weeks for the stock markets, especially USA equity indexes. We don't see this kind of move that often so it was fun watching S&P, NASDAQ and Russell moving higher with a huge percentage gain. It looks like NASDAQ is ready to hit the 3000 mark soon, and we won't be surprised if it goes there in the first quarter of 2013.

This week the Scorpio Moon is coming so surely some volatility will hit the markets but any corrections should be taken as a buying opportunity because the bull market has just started and has a long way to go from here onwards. This week Bio-tech, Healthcare and Pharmaceutical stocks will move sharply higher so you should be buying ETF's like PPH, IBB and XLV. Transport (IYT), consumer discretionary (XLY), industrial (XLI) and financial (XLF) are toward multiyear high, and they can still move higher.

Netflix, Apple, Amazon, Dell, HP and other tech companies can also move higher so hold positions in these stocks. Yes, we can protect our buying in US stocks and Indexes by selling energy and metals ETF's also you can hedge your buying by selling TREASURY BOND "TLT". Now investors are very lucky to have all these futures, currencies, call/put options and ETF's product to hedge their risks, unfortunately 15 years ago these were not available or only a few could have access to put hedging strategies in place.

This week you should be reducing your exposure in the market on Monday because on Tuesday and Wednesday we may see huge volatility with both side price fluctuations. Mid Thursday will be a great time to buy back positions in the market. If the markets don't fall on Tuesday and Wednesday then we may see a one sided up move so wait for our flash-news on Wednesday evening. At this stage our advice is to stay away on Tuesday and Wednesday, but don't short market thinking that they will fall because in a bull cycle shorting can prove to be the worst strategy. In a bull market cycle, you should be buying on weakness, like in the last week of December 2012, the markets fell sharply and those who bought them made fortunes and those who were shorting never got time to cover because the markets opened gap-up.

Emerging markets (EEM and VWO), Latin America (ILF) and FTSE/Xinhua (FXI) remained the best performing ETF's, Taiwan and other emerging markets started shaking a bit at higher levels. USA equity markets remained the best performing among all markets. Yes, South Africa did amazingly well as well.

This week is the time to finish pending work, avoid any aggressive trading, or trade in and out for the first three trading days. We will plan again taking positions back in market from Thursday.

Best strategy: if you still like holding positions in the markets then hold your positions in the USA equity and sell positions in emerging and European markets. This will be the best trading strategy for this week because the Scorpio moon can bring some negative news from Europe or emerging markets so these markets can fall more than USA equity markets. We don't recommend any shorts in the USA equity market, buying on weakness is our strategy.

Monday's trading range (March 2013 Contract):

AUSTRALIAN (Cash) – 4771 to 4740

NIKKEI – 10892 TO 10750

NIFTY S&P (Spot) – 6040 to 5999

SINGAPORE (cash) – 3240 TO 3224

HONG KONG (cash) – 22743 to 22586

CAC – 3748 TO 3721

DAX – 7815 TO 7745

FTSE – 6080 TO 6000

S&P – 1464.75 TO 1452.75

NASDAQ – 2732.75 TO 2703

RUSSELL – 880.75 TO 867.75

DOW – 13390 TO 13330

Early last year we recommended few stocks but then we never reminded you on those one, they were Master Card and Visa. You must hold these two stocks in your portfolio. Chart is here above, In the two years' time we see both these companies going four digit.

Best trades of this week:

Chinese market looks great during this week, so don't miss opportunity of buying

Sell metals on higher sides

Avoid any aggressive trade as this week is Scorpio Moon.

Small support: Please let aware about our new book to your close people. If we come right what we see for 2013, then they will also make money. Let everyone be successful, let pray for happy and prosperous 2013.

Thanks & God Bless
