Weekly Newsletter from 2-6 October

Markets are ready to gain momentum, but I am a bit concerned about commodities...

Dear Members,

Last week was the end of the third quarter of 2023 and we witnessed a lot of volatility, especially in the commodity market on Friday, which was the last day of trading. From this week we will be entering the final quarter of 2023. There will be some volatility in the market because the 15th of October is the tax filing deadline for people in California, so people may have to create cash to pay their taxes. The important part is that the Astro combinations are changing from the 2nd and 3rd of October. Mercury and Venus will be changing their houses on the 2nd, and Mars will be changing its house on the 3rd. These changes will be a very supportive move for the financial market, and not very supportive for the commodity market. Therefore, I am slightly concerned about the frontline commodities like Metals and Energies.

This week the job report on Friday will be an important event, and traders would like to watch the job numbers. Mixed job numbers will be good for the markets, and weaker job numbers will be concerning for many as it means that the economy is slowing down. Strong job numbers will be bad for the market as it will lead to FED hiking rates even more. For me what's important is that the Astro combinations remain strong and supportive of the markets, and currently they will be at least for the next 8 months.

As predicted Oil topped out, Grain prices collapsed to new lows (look at the charts of corn and wheat here below, curtsey of investing.com), and the Dollar struggled to move higher from our Astro resistance level which clearly indicates that inflation numbers have topped out and the FED rate hiking has ended at least for the medium term.

In the book I have mentioned that some volatility is expected in the metals market, and the precious metals trend on Thursday and Friday was negative on positive Astro days, which confirms that they will continue to struggle unless they close in the green on a negative Astro day. So far in the last 18 months, the FED kept hiking rates, but precious metals traded well. They didn't fall on the fear of the FED hike, and this happened because the Astro combinations were not negative over the last 18 months. The longer-term Astro combinations are still supportive but last Thursday and Friday's negative moves are clearly giving an alarming sign.

This Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday are very negative days and metals, so they need to close in the green to nullify last week's negative impact, so let's watch this week's trend closely. I am not recommending taking any long positions in precious metals at this stage.

Last week the Dollar moved down sharply from 106.18 as predicted. We are still recommending selling the Dollar on any sharp rise. Our prediction of the Dollar and most of the currencies trading on both sides has proven very accurate as over the last 18 months the Dollar has been swinging dramatically on both sides, and the same has been happening with the frontline currencies.

Oil prices came down sharply after testing $94.78, which was our higher-side predicted selling level. We still believe that Oil will struggle to cross this level. Selling is recommended for Energy products.

Here is this week's weekly newsletter from the 2nd to the 6th of October metals, indexes, energy, currencies, grains, softs, Thirty Year, and Crypto:

Reading daily range: When we predict a weaker trend it means prices can break lower side and they can trade below predicted lows. (You can cover short but don't buy extra at lower levels until our indicators give buy signal).

When we predict a positive trend, means daily price can break upside and they can trade higher than predicted price (you can book profit but don't short that market).
