Weekly Newsletter from 28 January – 1 February 2013

Dear Members,

Specially In the twenty years we “humans” made huge changes in our life patterns by developing new technologies. In fact, from 1900 onwards people started getting busy in developing the world and western countries played a key role. Before the 1900’s people used to be more violent, ready for attack, killing and grabbing peoples land or making people suffer. People were not aware of the real meaning of religion, just powerful influential leaders used to control society in the name of religion. In the olden days cruel people use to come on horses, kill people if they didn’t listen; take everything they got and there was no safety for children. Yes, there is no doubt that the world has moved far ahead for the betterment of society.

Thank God, we are born in the current time where law and order at least plays some role, people have more democracy now, and the media is so powerful that it can spread any news on events to bring awareness. BUT Even currently where extremists are there those area still suffering (great example of Taliban), they takes away freedom from society.

Whatever we have done in our small study on spiritual or inner awareness has given us humbleness, kindness and teaches us the principle of nature. I believe spiritual awareness is far greater and better than any religion. I was born in Hindu “Brahmin” Family, I am very religious person, and my religious duty is following the key principle of nature. Yes, the world is competitive and we have to compete not to beat anyone but to make you better.

There is a reason once again to start this week financial newsletter on this note and we always do it after a few weeks or after a few months because the more awareness you bring within you, makes you a happier, clam, content and successful person. I am not trying to preach to you here, I am still very young and many of you must be far ahead than me in terms of understanding natures principle and spiritual awareness.

We are writing this, because we should feel that the world is a far better place to live, success is great tool to bring others up, and wealth is great to distribute which can help the needy. The Financial market is great place to make quick financial success but nature’s principle says what you really want in life, you want success and that commitment is important and once you make that commitment with nature then we are sure success will come but if you forget about your commitment, with nature then nature will take away everything. Yes, this is the most powerful law or underline of success. Please make sure you have commitments to nature and then you start investing or trading and we are sure no one can stop your success. The one truth is that we are walking towards our financial destination, life may end after one year, or 30 years, but the truth is that life will end one day so what you will like to do most from today is important and that you can get it from your inner awareness.

Please give yourself some time every single day to, enjoy the time which you are spending with yourself. This will make you happy, and you will make your family happy, and there will be meaning to say that “the world is great place and thank nature for giving me birth on this beautiful planet” rather than many people who curse themselves and that’s why their life exists.

Most of you those who have been following our work since the last ten to fifteen years are aware that I like to talk on awareness and nature’s principles. Many who are new might feel award that why am I talking about all this on a financial newsletter but there is meaning because awareness is the most important key to become a successful in any business. Financial markets are the most volatile and once you make decisions in a hurry, most of times it brings loses. At least this has always happened with me, look at last week example, I bought Nasdaq in a hurry around 2737 after Apple announced its results, it went to 2712 and without keeping awareness that overall trend looks strong I got out quickly because I wanted to see the markets reactions the next day. Without awareness that I am predicting the greatest bull market so there was no need to worry but watching news, feeling short term fear made me take the wrong decision.

Anyways, watching CNBC results and at the same time making decisions without planning and immediately getting out, during all this process my inner awareness was not there. This always happens when ego takes place, and when ego takes place awareness goes away, I think lately I had a bit ego because of one of the best calls of S&P buying since last one year, I forget that this call I made was purely from astro indications, I am nothing how can I make any call without this theory.

Anyways, there is a lot to talk but I am ending this part here, let me go back to the financial market, before we start this week’s newsletter I humbly say that all our predictions are purely interpretations of astro combinations, I shouldn’t be taking any credit of these predictions.

Let’s see this week’s outlook for all major markets from 28 January to 1 February 2013

METALS

What is the main heading of 2013? In the two months newsletter and few times we publicly mentioned that the stock market would keep making new highs “S&P” toward 3200, metals and other commodities would struggle in 2013, Yen and Treasury bonds would fall and dollar would be bottoming out in early 2013. These are my main predictions of 2013, and if you just follow these predictions then no one can stop you from making money. Yes, the strategy is key and how you plan your trades and investments is purely upon each individual. Many of my personal clients who speak on a regular basis are also not able to take full advantage because they also hear too much noise from analysts and all different opinions and they get confused.

Stay long with S&P at this high price and keeping away from gold which has proven to be one of the best investment instruments of last 10 years. We have to disconnect with our love or hate towards any instrument when trading. You just respect the future coming trends and invest in that and we are sure you will never be disappointed. Many metals investors are feeling pain because they never liked S&P or the stock market because they have gotten used to making money in metals so when we recommend them to invest money in the market they simply ignored our advice and now they are in a confused state.

Once again our view in 2013 is not very bullish for metals, yes there will be a time when gold will be making attempts to move higher but the overall over trend will remain subdued. This week metals may try to stabilize and may show that the lower side is limited but we won't recommend any buying on any false rise.

On Monday price of gold may stabilized around the lower side predicted range and if it fails to rise on Tuesday it will confirm that gold's trend is entering a depressed direction. Unfortunately silver is tied to close to gold so also it can suffer loses on a short term basis.

Base metals "Palladium and Platinum" still look better but copper which is ruled by the planet Mars may remain under attack by a bear trend. If you still like to hold platinum and palladium then you should sell gold and copper. Silver we can keep buying in terms of longer term calls on each dollar fall.

Late Wednesday will be the right time to sell precious metals because weakness will continue throughout the week.

Here is Monday's range: (March/April 2013 contract):

GOLD: $1665.10 to $1648.90

SILVER: $31.41 TO $30.98

COPPER: $369.95 TO $363.00

PALLADIUM: $745.90 TO $729.20

PLATINUM: $1702 TO $1682.10

INDEXES

Wall-street and many world markets are enjoying one of the greatest steady rising cycles. Fund managers and people who bought value stocks are doing well. Many companies that had value are coming back like BlackBerry, HC, Dell and BestBuy because they are not out from market, yes they are down. Netflix was a big example and lesson to investors because everyone still watched movies on Netflix, I still have account with Netflix and in Europe they are growing very fast so finally the stock went up more than 200% percent in three months. Netflix stock went up from $50 to $168, look at BlackBerry (RIMM), it also gained from $6.00 to $18.

Apple has to do something because of  Apple NASDAQ underperformed in the last six months. Too many people started following Apple, and too much money was involved in Apple, but after this gloomy environment we still like Apple, it is a great company to buy and invest in because stocks will bounce back to four digits. Just ignore the market noise; the company is holding $137 billion dollars in cash on their balance sheet. Our important predicted support levels have been broken, and now the next strong support is around $432, so add stocks here and we will see soon whether it is going back to $500 and above in the next quarter.

Before we start writing about this week's trend, we would like to remind you that we see S&P can from move to 1548 to 1565, this target we predicted a few weeks back. We stated that if S&P trades above 1474 for two days then our next target is 1552. Now it looks like S&P will enter a new horizon because for the whole of last week S&P held above 1474.

European markets will follow S&P, and other world markets will also follow S&P so the now time has come for the world markets will follow S&P without each country and companies fundamentals or economic strength.

Last week we recommended getting out from stocks in the European markets, just play Indexes now, trade in and out. If you selling any market then buy S&P against your selling trade because without hedging you shouldn't be making any naked short trades.

This week's astro indicators are positive from Monday to Wednesday. On Monday we may see volatility due to Moon in Cancer, as Cancer sign represents water and water is a sign of uncertainty with high tide as well as low tide, it depends on the Moons gravity.

The Full Moon is on Sunday, and Sunday represents the Sun, so the markets will move in a positive direction here in USA during electronic sessions.

On Tuesday and Wednesday we may see the markets bouncing back from lows. During the last two hours of trading sessions we recommend booking profit in markets and stay aside as a short term weaker trend may enter the markets from Thursday and Friday and the markets will trade in a confused direction. My best advice is the wait and watch strategy after mid Wednesday, as sharp corrections can make investors worry, this correction will last for a short period.

“Monday will be an interesting day because we may experience high tide in the markets, which means stock indexes can move up like a tide”. Focus on Index based stocks in all major markets like Australian, Singapore, Indian, European and USA markets. Buy highly Index weight stocks. Following the high tide you can continue on Tuesday and early Wednesday.

Monday's trading range (March 2013 Contract):

AUSTRALIAN (Cash) – 4879 to 4850

NIKKEI – 11125 TO 10915

NIFTY S&P (Spot) – 6117 to 6062

SINGAPORE (cash) – 3283 TO 3260

HONG KONG (cash) – 23689 to 23511

CAC – 3805 TO 3769

DAX – 7905 TO 7801

FTSE – 6275 TO 6229

S&P – 1505.25 TO 1491.50

NASDAQ – 2747.75 TO 2714.25

RUSSELL – 909.5 TO 898.10

DOW – 13891 TO 13780

TREASURY BONDS

On the last week Thursday and Friday thirty year bond prices fell sharply as predicted. Yes, the Thirty year bond fall remained the best-selling recommendations in the last two months and on the other hand avoiding metals and buying S&P remained the best advice so why should we focus on any other markets when a few calls are doing so great.

This week it looks like Thirty year bonds will break on our lower side first target, it means that it can approached our next predicted target. Our first target was 143.10 which should get fulfilled early this week. Our next target that we predicted was 135, which shall also get also fulfilled soon in the next two months. Sometimes our predicted targets get fulfilled quicker than our predicted conservative time frame, like Swiss Franc, Yen, Soy Bean and Indexes.

From Monday to Wednesday Bond prices will fall sharply and may touch new lows, on Thursday and Friday we may see some rebound so trade accordingly. We may write an update in Thursday's flashnews about how quickly it can fall to 135 if it doesn't rebound.

Monday's trading range:

TREASURY BOND – 146-14 TO 145-10

SOFT COMMODITIES

As we mentioned a few times soft commodities underperformed during 2012, and also 2013 started with a weaker trend except cotton which did very well. Trading the markets with technical charts gives the most touch time, this is not my view it is from one of the great technical advisors Mr. Gerry. In 2005 I was following coffee very closely through my astro indicators, and he was following purely using technical. I was predicted great a bull cycle to start and he was saying, Mahendra, weakness will continue. I don't remember the date but I bought coffee around $63.90, he told me don't buy as it is falling down and may make new lows. He also wanted to buy because I was bullish but following the technical he didn't buy. In three days coffee prices moved from $63.90 to $90.00, and in the two months $125. He still remembers that up move in coffee because he missed that trade.

The same situation is taking place now; most technical analysts are very negative on coffee due to sharp fall on Tuesday and Thursday of last week. Every analyst is predicting lower prices for coffee in the coming days, and yes that scares me as well because most hedge funds, commercials and farmers follows technical charts very closely and they act on technical patterns. Our astro indicators predicted a low for coffee around $142.20 in the worst case scenario, and $146.20 in near term. If coffee still breaks these levels on down side then I may get concern because we may be making a major error in our study. At this stage our call of buying coffee remains intact; so let's see if our astro indicators win or technical indicators push prices down.

On Monday coffee prices will remain sideways, but from Tuesday onwards we may see prices moving higher and on Wednesday they will trade in a narrow range to a bit weaker but on Thursday and Friday they should push toward higher sides. Fundamentals news are bullish and bearish for coffee, bullish news is the Roya (Fungus) situation is getting worse in many countries. Bearish news is Brazil is expected to have a higher side predicted crop in 2013 and technical charts showing weakness. (Read in detail about coffee at the end of this newsletter for educations purpose)

At this stage after coffee, our next recommendations is buying sugar and orange juice, so take some positions in both of these soft commodities. The higher side limited so on small profits you should close the trade. Weather conditions in Brazil and Thailand are far better for the sugar crop, and sugar production is very high. An Indian production is mixed, and India is importuning sugar rather than exporting! We don't know the reason behind this but at this stage no longer term trades should be taken in sugar. The weather in Florida is favoring the orange juice crop but our indicators are still saying take small buying trades in orange juice.

Astro indicators for cocoa are negative, in fact since the last nine months we have been recommending avoiding positions in cocoa. Still we see cocoa will remain weaker so there is no need to buy any positions there. Fundamental news is also negative for cocoa, as weather conditions are good in the Ivory Coast, and ending stock at warehouses is increasing. Europe is bidding lower price on Cocoa.

Monday trading range: (Mar 2013 Contract)

COFFEE: $149.75 TO $146.45

COTTON: $81.75 TO $79.80

COCOA: $2198 TO $2145

SUGAR: $18.55 TO $18.18

ORANGE JUICE: $115.25 TO $112.20

GRAINS

At this stage grains will trade mixed as they have been trading mixed since the last five months. We don't recommend any longer as well as medium term positions in any grains except Rice. Though fundamental news is mixed on rice, Venus represents the white color so it is favoring rice. Currently all white color related things are doing fine like Cotton, platinum and palladium. Sugar and silver are both also white but they are represented by the Moon, and currently the Moons cycle is not 100% favoring these both these commodities but surely there is still a 50% support because of the white color and that is the reason we predicted silver out performing gold in the medium and longer term.

Last week on Thursday we stated that corn looks better but it never moved up so stay aside without taking any big positions.

Fundamentals and technical are mix for the grains, Australia is expecting showers so concerns that the heat wave is slowing down.

The best strategy is to trade in and out in grains as per our daily predicted ranges, as this strategy is working very well at this stage.

Monday's trading range (March 2013 contracts):

CORN: $728.25 TO $715.50

WHEAT: $783.50 TO $769.25

RICE: $15.59 TO $15.35

SOY: $1454.25 TO $1433.25

SOY MEAL: $419.80 TO $412.50

SOY OIL: 52.59 TO $51.65

ENERGY

Oil traded in a very narrow trading range during last week, and natural gas came down as predicted and other energy products like heating oil and RB gas traded positive.

At this stage oil is following the markets so traders are chasing oil trade or we can say they are holding their trades tightly. We are a bit nervous at this stage because on weaker days oil is not falling, we won't recommend any new trades in oil until we don't see corrections.

On Monday astro indicators are giving positive indications for oil so it may trade in a positive direction for the whole day, and may react during the closing hours so on both sides' prices may get fulfilled.

On Tuesday we may see rising again in oil prices but will it give up all gains during the second half of the day, we recommend selling oil on Tuesday. One can add more selling positions on Wednesday on the higher sides.

On Thursday and Friday we will see weakness or sharp falls in oil prices. Heating oil and RB gas will follow oil so our trade recommendations are same as oils weekly trading pattern for both of these energy products.

Natural gas fell sharply during last week from $3.65 to $3.40 as predicted; we see weakness continuing in gas prices in the coming days. Sell natural gas on any rise on Monday and hold positions for the whole week, we may see $3.26 in coming days.

Note – Those who are holding shorts in oil should reduce exposure by 50% if oil doesn't fall or if oil opens around our predicted lower side target because since last one month we have been wrong on predicting oil trend. Once we see that our astro indicators are getting right then you can double your trade.

Monday's trading range (all March contracts):

OIL: $97.83 to $95.03

NATURAL GAS: $3.50 to $3.40

HEATING OIL: $3.0750 TO $3.0332

RB GAS: $2.9205 TO $2.8610

CURRENCIES

Last week Japanese Yen collapsed toward multi year lows, this proven one of best trade so far. Now we may see some rebound taking place in Yen but it will be only for the short term. Now next two months trading range for Yen will be 1.0810 to 1.1489. Monday we will see both sides' moves in yen, Tuesday you can buy around predicted lows in the flashnews of Tuesday and keep adding buying position in it.

One can book profit in the Yen by late evening of Thursday or Friday morning because Friday it will trade mix, or prices will come down from higher sides of the day.

Euro traded sharply higher toward multi months high against most of all currencies, Fridays negative days move confirm that Euro may move higher for the two days before it move down sharply. We highly recommend taking small sell positions in Euro, and keep adding because this we can use it as hedging positions against stock market buying. Monday we see rising momentum in Euro continue, sell very small quantity around predicted high here below. Add small quantity more on Tuesday around predicted higher as later in evening we may see Euro prices falling.

Australian and Canadian dollar will keep trading lower, so those who shorted these currencies should hold their sell position because both these currencies can fall sharply in coming days. Our target for Australian dollar is Par value and Canadian 0.9710. There will be sharp corrections in both of these currencies from Wednesday.

Swiss Franc will move higher on Monday, so buy Swiss Franc against all other currencies, this will be good trade to hedge your risk. We won't surprise if it moves toward 1.10 during this week.

British Pound will remain in confused situations; we are not advising to take any trade at this stage. Selling will be highly recommended on any rise or on late Wednesday. We have been watching very carefully Pound trend because it has been constantly losing value against most of currencies.

Dollar index was saved by Yen fall otherwise it should be toward $78.00 levels by now. Anyway Dollar is trading in very narrow trading range and we strongly recommend building some core position or if you already have position then adding more positions around 79.50 levels. Don't go very high leverage trade but surely this trade will make you fortune in the 2013.

Emerging market currencies are trading mixed, Rand gained value after moving down sharply on last Thursday. Rand fall is purely to attract more investment in country, also interest high rate is not attracting many because institutional investors missing investment opportunity in other countries. Mining industry is not performing well; many investors are a bit concerned about gold underperformance so Rand may lose shine in coming days.

Indian Rupee is trading in the tight range, looking for directions but policy makers are confused so Rupee may remain here around same value. We don't see any strength coming immediately, surely positive trend from Euro and weakness of Dollar in international market may help Rupee to remain a bit positive. We see same trading range for RUPEE from 53.20 to 55.90 in the next two months before it starts getting stronger or moving toward 50.00. Trading in and out will be best strategy for Rupee at this stage.

Point to be noted:

Still there is a lot of problem in Europe, Italy, Greece and Spain has to address fundamental points, at this stage positive trend of financial market is making banking and financial industry happier but they have to fix bottom line problems in Euro zone. Mr. Draghi looks more optimistic at this stage, our views are also positive for Europe in 2013 and 2014. Most of you aware that in the 2015 euro may lose 50 to 70% value so we will focus on Dollar more in coming time.

Monday's trading range (March Future contract).

DOLLAR INDEX – 80.04 to 79.60

AUSTRALIAN DOLLAR – 1.0423 to 1.0345

CANADIAN DOLLAR – 0.9942 to 0.9879

BRITISH POUND – 1.5841 to 1.5745

EURO – 1.3509 to 1.3425

JAPANESE YEN – 1.1099 to 1.0952

SWISS FRANC – 1.0833 to 1.0759

RUPPEE – 54.00 to 53.48 (Spot)

RAND – 9.02 to 8.84 (Spot)

COFFEE DETAIL OUTLOOK

Next week I will be in Brazil, we love drinking coffee and surely we may invest some money in coffee.

Here is fundamental Coffee Data of 2012/23. At this stage Fundamental looks okay so commercial and traders are not worried about any major price movement in coffee price, also technical chart of coffee is not showing any great strength but if weather catastrophes take place then whole scenario will change overnight. History is witness how coffee prices moved limit up, here what I we know small about history of coffee and this we mentioned before:

In 1902 there was devastating frost which created panic in the coffee market, other times severe frost occurred was in 1918, 1942, 1953, 1955, 1957, 1966 and then again in 1975 (July 17-19). Very severe frosts hit Brazil and prices went limit up for seven days. Price of coffee in future market went up from $70.00 to $340 non-stop.

More recently in 1994 traders were aware that the season would be cold but on 25-26 June 1994 frost hit brazil coffee growing area and after two weeks the same thing happened on 9-10 July which created havoc on future trading floor. Most of us are aware that 1994 was year of frost and drought. Coffee price went from $70.00 to $255 limit up before anyone can take advantage of this worst news.

In 1996 coffee prices went up not because of Frost but due to short supply.

In 1999, drought hit Brazil, and 40% crop got damaged but it never affected price as in the previous few years crop yields were good.

2000 was mystery year, after 1999 drought, where there was moderate frost, prices went up for few days and then prices kept falling sharply and made 30 year low.

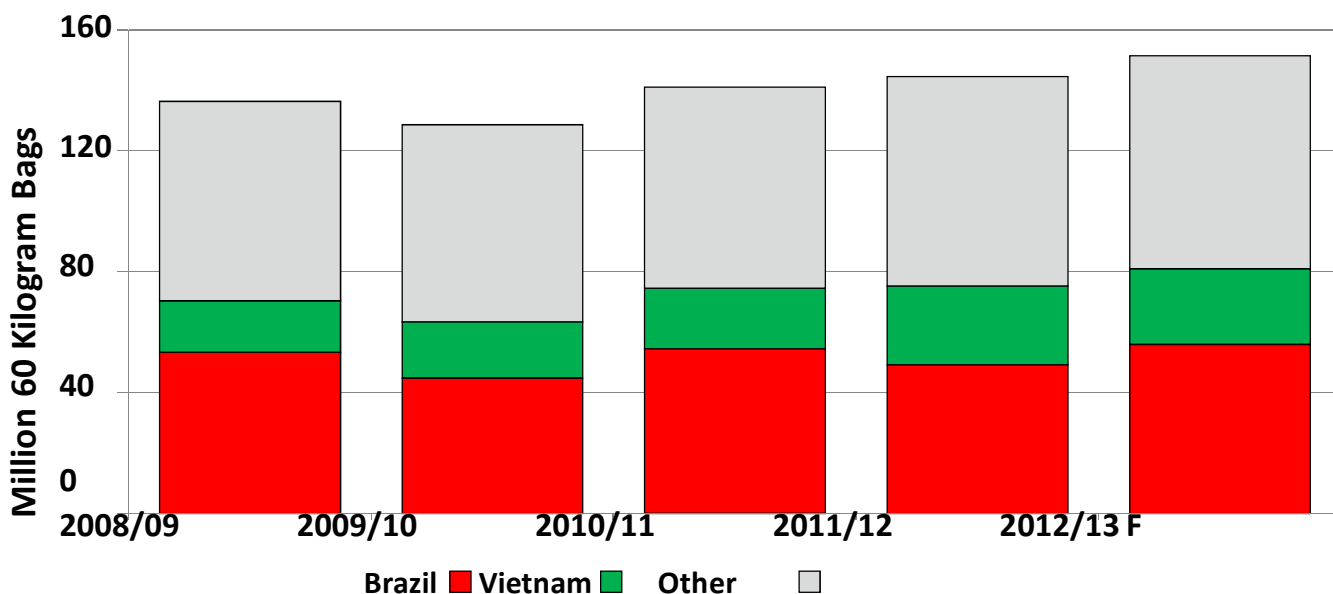

It is always very tricky to trade crop commodities as key players play a vital role in price movement. If they are well placed with their bet then they make prices skyrocket, and if key players are not in big position and if weaker hand enters in market then these powerful groups push price down and make sure that the weaker hand loses everything.

This year record World Production Forecast for Third Consecutive Year, here is USDA forecast:

2012/13 Forecast Overview

Record World Production Forecast for Third Consecutive Year

2012/13 Forecast Overview

Brazil's production is forecast at a record 55.9 million bags, up 6.7 million from the previous year due primarily to the Arabica trees entering the on-year of the biennial production cycle. Whereas previous cycles grew steadily, this year it is forecast slightly below the last on-year due to frost damage and dry conditions in Minas Gerais, its main growing region. The Robusta harvest is forecast to continue expanding as favorable weather and good crop management aided fruit settings and development in Espirito Santo, where the vast majority is grown. Nearly half of the additional supply is expected to augment exports, with the rest going to modest gains in consumption and stocks.

Vietnam's production is forecast at 25.0 million bags, down 1.0 million from last year's record harvest (significant area expansion and record yield caused last year's unexpected 30 percent production spike). Pre-season rain throughout the growing region caused an early bloom which lowered yield. Bean exports are forecast 2.0 million bags lower to 22.0 million, while ending stocks are expected to almost double to 1.8 million bags. Consumption is forecast to continue rising as the coffee culture spreads.

Indonesia's production is forecast to rebound 1.4 million bags to 9.7 million on favorable growing conditions, whereas the previous two harvests suffered from excessive rainfall. The forecast falls short of the record 2009/10 harvest because coffee area has since declined over 5 percent as higher prices for cocoa, rubber, and palm oil encouraged substitution. Bean exports are forecast to recover 1.2 million bags to 6.1 million as production gains are mostly exported.

India's production is forecast to rise 100,000 bags to a record 5.3 million on higher Robusta output. Growers in Karnataka, the largest coffee producing state, are anticipating a record Robusta harvest due to increased area and yield. Although bean exports are forecast to slip 100,000 bags to 4.1 million, this marks the third year of strong exports and declining stocks.

Colombia's production is forecast to slide nearly 200,000 bags to 7.5 million following reports that production in the first two months of the October- September marketing year was down 5 percent compared to the same period last year. This marks the lowest production in four decades and well below the record 18 million bags reached in 1991/92. For the fifth consecutive year, problems are expected to persist related to the coffee cherry borer and rust. Also, the ongoing tree renovation program has the near-term effect of lowering output until these trees reach maturity. As a result, bean exports are forecast at just 6.5 million bags, down 3 percent from the previous year. Bean imports, which jumped to 1.1 million bags last year to supply consumption, are forecast to remain elevated at 900,000 bags.

Central America's production is forecast to add 200,000 bags to total 14.6 million as modest gains in El Salvador and Honduras more than offset a slight decline in Costa Rica. Leaf rust was recently detected in several countries, constraining production. The region's bean exports are forecast to rise 300,000 bags. <http://www.aventura-cafe.com/Central-America-Caribbean.:90.html>

The EU accounts for nearly half of world bean imports and is forecast to increase slightly to 45.5 million, with top suppliers including Brazil (28%), Vietnam (25%) and Honduras (7%). As a result, ending stocks are expected to remain tight near the decade low.

The United States imports the second-largest amount of coffee beans and is forecast to decrease slightly to 23.4 million, with top suppliers including Brazil (25%), Vietnam (18%) and Colombia (13%). Ending stocks as well as consumption are forecast to rise incrementally.

Here USDA revised report, but we should aware that recent Roya is having huge impact on crop in central America, also dry weather is have been increasing in Brazil is also concern sign. India also announces 15% less productions this year.

Anyway we will be watching situations very closely in market during 2013/14.

World production is revised up from the June estimate by 6.8 million bags to 144.4 million.

- Vietnam is revised up 5.0 million bags to 26.0 million due to higher-than-anticipated area and yield.
- Honduras is raised 1.0 million bags to 5.6 million as more trees reached fruit bearing maturity earlier than expected, following previous year's area expansion. World bean exports are raised 6.4 million bags to 101.5 million.
- Vietnam is revised up 5.0 million bags to 24.0 million following higher available exportable supplies.
- Honduras is raised 1.1 million bags to 5.3 million due to increased production.

Coffee is currently trading about 79% lower than its all-time inflation adjusted high set in the 1970s:

Reading daily range: When we predict a weaker trend it means prices can break lower side and they can trade below predicted lows. (You can cover short but don't buy extra at lower levels until our indicators give buy signal).

When we predict a positive trend, means daily price can break upside and they can trade higher than predicted price (you can book profit but don't short that market).
